COLORED BACKGROUND

Folks, this country boy needs your help and needs it NOW! Somehow or another we have been conned into participating in the Turkeywalk . . . the local drive to raise money for the Heart Fund. That in itself is bad enough for a couch potato, but it gets worse as we have been challenged by "The Mouth of the South" Doug Holderfield, who is actually on the radio saying we can't even walk three miles. All the time he is saying these untruths, Holderfield is asking for donations so "Uncle Doug" can raise more money for a worthwhile charity than this overweight country boy. All that coming from someone with almost as big a spare tire as ours and he smokes those 'ol cigarettes also. We have got a lot of gray in our hair, but we will walk our three miles and urge you to please send in your checks, made out to the Heart Fund, to help us raise more money than that guy at the radio station. Better still, how about coming by the office and signing our "walk sheet" and wishing us well. If we are going to get out on November 19 and do the walking, we ask that you please help finance the trip. . . . or come walk with us.

We were told by a little sawed-off Infantry Army captain thirty-something BEATRICE BORDERS years ago that we couldn't keep up with him on a 20-mile hike in the snow with full field pack. . . . Well, we did it - and were determined not to ever let him know just how we were hurting from the ups and downs and the rocks of those Colorado mountains. When we got to that barren spot that looked no better than the one we had started from, there was a jeep with hot coffee and a box of homemade cookies sent through the mail by my mother. He said we could now take a break and eat our goodies. They were mighty good and we just hope those ladies have us some when this

It is nice to hear that Sonya Williamson is home from that Birmingham hospital. We of course like her parents and she also has a special place in our hearts. Her mother was in the same Elba General Hospital maternity room with Heddy just before Sonya was born. It was a false alarm by a couple of weeks for them but she was there and we don't forget. We even feel a little embarrassed when we think of her ordeal in the hospital and know that there but for the Grace of God goes the Cox family. Most of us would gladly trade places with one of these young folks if we could take their pain away from them but it doesn't work that way. Just join with us and be thankful she is recovering nicely.

Thursday is Veterans Day, and most of us don't show the proper respect to those who defended this country to give us the freedoms and easy living we are presently enjoying. This year we have the chance to share in honoring these veterans in a special way. National Security Insurance is dedicating that beautiful Veterans Memorial Park today (Thursday) at 2 p.m. and we need to join with them. While we are there, let's take a moment to say thanks to some National Security employee they all had a part

This is being written before the election and therefore we can only guess as of choice. to the results. We won't be stupid enough to GUESS the results now and have you KNOW for sure by the time you are reading our thoughts. However we can openly dream that the politicians will be just as involved in taking down their political signs as they were in putting them up before the elections. We remember one concerned candidate who promised us during his campaign that he would take up all his political signs. Well when his race was over the man got a bit upset because there was three of those posters that he couldn't find! Now that is keeping a promise. This man kept up with his posters (how many and where) and went back to get them all. We need a lot more folks who are as concerned with the community as

Bible alike?

Can we really see the

There is no doubt that there are many different opinions about the Bible, out as Paul reminds us, "God is not the author of confusion, but of peace" 1 Cor. 14:33). To say that it is not possible to see the Bible alike, is to say that God has not been able to communicate His will to us. If we are to "see the Bible alike," certain principles must be closely folowed. We must, above all, bring a great love for the truth to our study. Jesus said, "If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free" (John 8:31-32). And in our search for truth, we must bring an attitude of love and humility to our study. Too many people study the Bible not because they love God and His written word, but because they want to "prove a point," or find a scrip-

Paul advised Timothy, "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a orkman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth" (2 Tim. 2:15). The phrase, "rightly dividing the word of truth," refers to making the proper distinctions among the three ages we read of in the Bible The first age, the "patriarchal Age," was from Adam to Moses, and the sec ond age was the "Mosaic Age," from Moses through the life of Christ. The third age, in which we now live, is the "Christian Age," which began with the church, and will continue to the end of time. The laws and regulations of the former ages do not apply to us today, unless repeated for the Christian

As a Bible passage is studied, note must be made of who is the author of and who is addressed. The Bible records accurately the words the Devil and evil men. Disaster will result if one tries to appy what the Bible says, without noting who speaks, and who is addressed. It is very important in Bible study to determine why the particular passage was written. For instance, many people misunderstand and misinterpret the book of Revelation, not realizing that it is primarily a symbolic book originally written to comfort Christians undergoing persecution by the Roman empire. Knowing that its main message is one of hope and comfort to those n distress allows easier understanding. Most importantly, consider the surrounding verses, or context of the passage under consideration. Most Bible controversies are easily resolved when the context is considered. Too many want to take a few individual verses out of context, and read into them their own beliefs. We can see the Bible alike. We must recognize it as God's revealed will. He expects us to understand and obey it. Be diligent in your study. Your

Views From THE PRESSIBOX By Ricky Mularz, Editor

The weather was so beautiful over the weekend that Sunday afternoon my wife and I decided to travel up to Pike Road to see its annual arts and crafts show. We found Pike Road without any problem and headed out in the country, the problem was we couldn't find any thing that even resembled an arts and crafts show and spent about a half an hour riding the back roads in Montgomery County. We finally found someone to ask just where the show was and the answer was that the show had ended Saturday. Oh well, at least it was a pretty day to ride around!

ELBA FALLS IN OPENING ROUND OF 3A PLAYOFFS

The Elba Tigers and the state playoffs seemed to go hand in hand in recent years as the Tigers rolled up 10 wins over a three year period and lost only to state champions. This year was to be more of the same, except that this time the Tigers were picked to win it all and bring home the top prize....or, so everyone thought

The Elba Tigers found out the hard way Friday night that once the playoffs begin all the wins during the regular season mean nothing and the playoffs are really just a continual "sudden death" contest as they were upset by the Holtville Bulldogs and eliminated from the playoffs in the opening round. The Tigers were heavy favorites in the game and had the superior team, but Friday night Elba just couldn't reach down and find that certain something that teams have to have when things aren't going right. When it finds it...the championships will follow!

The Elba offense was handicapped Friday night because of the injury to starting quarterback Kevin Matthews, but as good as Matthews was, his bsence shouldn't have been enough to completely cripple the Tiger offense. The Elba backs had carried the ball for an average of over 6 yards per carry during the season, but Friday night had problems getting past the line of scrimmage and when the game was on the line couldn't gain the three yards needed for the win. There was more missing than just the quar- half when a fumble turned into a touchdown and put the Dogs behind 21-0 Over on defense the Tigers allowed only one touchdown and it came on somewhat of a busted play when a halfback just threw the ball up for grabs due to a heavy rush. The defense came up with big plays when it needed to PLAYOFFS OFF TO INTERESTING START and played well, but it too had a chance to turn the momentum around with 5:34 left in the game when Holtville gambled on fourth and one at its own 44 yardline and converted, a gamble that paid off and let Holtville run in additional three minutes off the clock. The loss to Holtville didn't happen because one player didn't play, or are still talking about the loss and pointing fingers at different players and in the playoffs. No doubt who has the best team that isn't playing! coaches. Everyone on the team worked during the summer getting ready for the season and then started practicing football in pads the first week in August. The players and coaches worked hard for over three months in hopes of winning the state title and if the fans who are doing all the talking will just stop and think how bad they feel, the members of the team feel twice as bad. thinking

New Brockton unleashed a powerful running attack and a hard

The opening week of the playoffs always bring with it a lot of surprises and such was the case again this year as upsets, stormy weather and overtime games took the headlines. Here are a few notes worth mentioning... Jeff Davis jumped out to an 8-0 record and a lofty ranking, but then because one player did. Enterprise clubbed a good Valley squad 31-0 and some Wildcat fans are loudly proclaiming that their team is heading for a state title. Former Elba Tiger standout Richard McKinnon gained 70 yards on 10 carries and scored two first half touchdowns Saturday to lead Alabama A & M to a big 39-0 win over Clark College. The Elba defense again knocked the Bulldogs back, but this time on third and 17 the visitors got on the scoreboard when Stevie Lykes took a handoff and then tossed a halfback pass to DeWayne Ellis, who pulled in the pass in the back corner of the endzone.
